

Gentlemen,

Our armed forces continue to serve faithfully and sacrificially, their commitment to protect our freedoms unchanged, even though attitudes and actions necessary to support them here at home often change. All of us know the importance of prayer and personal support of the military personnel we know and love. There are hundreds of thousands more who need our prayers and an opportunity to hear a clear presentation of the Gospel. An area of great need today is for Bible-believing chaplains to serve with them. As a Department of Defense recognized Chaplain Endorsing Agency, the FBFI sends outstanding men into military ministry, with strong spiritual leaders in place in key positions of service. Right now, for any qualified applicant, the US Army Chaplaincy is an open door. I would love to discuss the opportunities with you personally if you want more information.

You may know of a young man who is seeking God's will for his future ministry. There are good resources available to you if you see potential in anyone who might be effective in the chaplaincy. There is a brief video at this site that you can share with others, or even consider showing in a Missions Conference, to young preachers, or college classes. You might even share it with the service men from your congregation, or prayerfully consider it as an option for yourself. The spokesman in this video is Chaplain (Major General) Doug Carver, the US Army Chief of Chaplains. To give you some idea of the kind of men who are serving and seeking military ministry, here is a recent photo taken at the Chaplains Basic Officer Leadership Course at Fort Jackson, SC, with the individuals identified below:

sick; FBFI Chaplain (LT) Josh Cox; and FBFI President and Chaplain Endorser John Vaughn

You can learn more about CBOLC and the immediate opportunities in the US Army at this site: http://www.goarmy.com/chaplain/chaplain_officer_basic.jsp. Please invest a few minutes in your preacher boys and in our country by informing yourself about this immediate need and great opportunity for young preachers. Thank you very much.

Sincerely, in Christ,

Dr. John C. Vaughn, President and Endorser, FBFI
